A Vision for Congregational Discipleship

The vision for congregational discipleship begins with understanding why discipleship is important. With an ever changing world how do we build a congregation that is committed to Godly principles and caring for one another? From the scriptures we will be able to find some indicators of discipleship models and goals for our congregations.

Methods of Congregational Discipleship

After gaining a vision for congregational discipleship, the next step is to determine the methods a congregation might use to effectively disciple one another. To reach the goal of meaningful, personal interaction, members must interact personally. This topic will explore various methods of effective discipleship within a congregation.

Delivering Congregational Discipleship

Ok, so theory and philosophy (vision & method) may chart the course for our congregations, yet to be effective the concept must be delivered. Delivering discipleship requires persistence, resolve, and a good dose of tenacity. Pastors also need to know where it "itches." In this topic we want to explore how we act upon the vision and method of making disciples.
