... in intergenerational relationships and communication – Jonathan Hochstetler

> We communicate best with those among our peers, yet how can generation gaps be bridged where both youth and young married couples can ask questions to help shape positive church culture?
>
> What are practical ways that we can listen well, respond with love, and lead the church where all ages can find their place and prosper?

...in healthy congregational life – Bill Mullet

> So the church...had peace and was being built up. And walking in the fear of the Lord and in the comfort of the Holy Spirit, it multiplied. (Acts 9:31)
>
> This verse presents a compelling portrait of a thriving, spirit-led church. Within it, we find foundational pillars that illuminate the essential elements of congregational health and long-term sustainability. By examining the principles that empowered the Apostolic and early church to flourish, we gain insight into timeless truths that remain indispensable for building sustainable, vibrant congregations today.

... in ministry, personal lives, and leadership
– Henry Blank

The calling of a bi-vocational pastor is a comprehensive calling- it touches every dimension of life, not just what happens at "church". What are the habits, rhythms, and practices that church leaders need to pay attention to?

- Rhythms of rest
- Solitude
- Family involvement in ministry
- Physical exercise and diet
- Connecting with a mentor
- Personal development
- Pastoral burnout

Ladies' Session

... in pausing to listen — to God and each other
– Sharon Miller

There is value in listening, but sometimes this quality is lost in a world of busyness and noise. This session will explore what needs to be cut in order to listen better.
